

WHO'S WHO in the Day's News

WILLIAM G. McADOO.

Placed for the big achievements that have marked his career. The day that he gave up college to make his own living, William G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury and director general of railroads, has several connections with President Wilson. Cabinet that he might accomplish even bigger things in his life and store up something for the future.

Characterized by a friend, "as a grammar of dreams that come true," Mr. McAdoo has accomplished things of great magnitude. His career is a succession of great accomplishments which began in 1882 when he attempted to give Knoxville, Tenn., its first street railway line, and only failed when the city administration blocked his efforts.

The great coup which first gave him a national reputation was the construction of the Hudson tubes. The capital investment was $60,000,000. In 1908 at an outlay of $60,000,000 the Hudson tubes made him a power in politics and when the Wilson administration began in 1913, McAdoo was one of the controlling factors. He was one of the president's original boosters and was a delegate to the Baltimore convention in 1912. In this campaign he was first chairman of the campaign committee and later became vice chairman of the national committee, although he practically directed all its movements. He was not the actual head. He was credited with the responsibility for the success of the campaign and when elected President Wilson named Mr. McAdoo secretary of the treasury.

In this capacity Mr. McAdoo was prominent in the adjustments following the reorganization of the treasury, the organization of the federal reserve system and the establishment of the income tax. But when the nation entered the European war Secretary McAdoo was called to the head of the problems that no man in his position had ever been forced to face. There were tax measures, bond issues, which exceeded even the war effort, and other financial enterprises which called for almost undivided attention. Then on December 22 last President Wilson issued a proclamation for the taking over of the railroads and placed Secretary McAdoo in control of them, the actual control beginning on January 1 of this year.

Among the first things to be done in connection with the railroads was the appointment of regional directors. Then followed the cutting of salaries of executives, the increasing of trainmen's wages and the raising of freight and passenger rates. Passenger train service was reduced on all lines, and finally came the pooling of all the roads to make one big system. Mr. McAdoo left the University of Tennessee in his junior year. He was made deputy clerk of the federal court at Chattanooga and began the study of law. He was admitted to the bar in Chattanooga in his twenty-third year and became counsel for two local railroad companies. In this capacity he acquired the reputation of a man in good standing when he became director general of railroads.

Born near Marietta, Ga., Mr. McAdoo is now in his thirty-sixth year. He has been married twice. His first wife was Miss Sarah Hazelhurst Fleming of Chattanooga, whom he married on November 8, 1885. She died in February, 1912, leaving six children, three sons and three daughters. On May 1, 1914, Mr. McAdoo married Miss Eleanor Wilson, a daughter of the president. The ceremony took place at the White House. They have one daughter.

Mr. McAdoo is a member of the Episcopal church and of the Metropolitan, Cosmos, Chevy Chase and Navy (University) (Washington). Railroad and Press clubs and the Southern Society of New York.

ATHENA CLASS WILL STUDY SOCIOLOGY

Problems connected with sociology are studies by the Athena class this winter, and those considered yesterday at a meeting held at the library were connected with marriage and divorce.

Miss Elizabeth Patterson was in charge of the program, and Mrs. Wm. Judd read an article on the Eugenic laws of Wisconsin. The fact was emphasized in the discussion, that the family is the foundation of the state, and of society, and that the percentage of marriages in the U. S., was slowly increasing.

The things most to be desired in connection with the subject was uniform marriage laws in all the states, and enforced registration of all marriages.

The laxity of marriage laws was found to be a factor of divorces, and a large per cent of children of reform schools to be a product of homes broken up by desertion or divorce.

The next meeting of the class will be in two weeks, with the liquor question as the topic of discussion.

CHURCH SALES HELD BY TWO ORGANIZATIONS

Yesterday was sales' day at the churches, at least two of them having affairs of that nature. At the Presbyterian church the church aid conducted the sale, there being several tables devoted to ware of different kinds. Mrs. Kozar and Mrs. McCall were in charge of the housewares, having various kinds of appetizing goods on sale. Mrs. Geo. Rummel and Mrs. Soudmore were in charge of the apron table, and Mrs. Henry Hansen, Mrs. Ber Jackson, Mrs. S. Kent, Mrs. Ward and Mrs. Wm. Scofield presided over the fancy work. The community aid, which is a branch of the church society, dispensed coffee and doughnuts in a side room. Mrs. Rexford, Mrs. Michaelis and Miss Margaret Patterson were busy with this part of the entertainment.

Quantities of beautiful work in the housewares lines were on display and much of it was sold.

At the Gargill Methodist church a supper and sale was held by Circle No. 8, of which Mrs. Wm. Evenson is chairman. The sale booth was in charge of Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Kearney, and beautiful things in the line of fancy pillow cases, towels, aprons, and articles of like nature were sold.

A chicken pie supper was served in the dining room beginning at five o'clock to about 300 people. The menu included besides the chicken, mashed potatoes, sweet corn, salad, butter, with cake, jelly, and coffee for dessert. About 15 ladies from the circle were working in the dining room and kitchen, and were assisted in serving supper by a corps of young lady assistants.

Tales of the Friendly Forest

"A miss is just as good as a mile," said Mrs. Bunny with a smile. As Billy Bunny looked the door when the Miller's Dog knocked on it with his paw.

If you read the story that goes before this

You'll see that an inch is as good as a mile.

"Gracious me!" said Billy Bunny, after he got his breath. That dreadful Miller's Dog has pulled off and my powder puff tail, and he looked in his mother's cheval glass. And, sure enough, there was very little tail where a fall ought to be.

"You must be more careful next time," said Mrs. Bunny, and then she got out a lollipop, and gave it to her little Bunny boy, and after that she called up Uncle Lucky to tell him what a dreadful thing had happened to his little nephew.

And wasn't the old gentleman rabbit angry? Well, you just bet he was. And then he said over the wire, "I'll call up the Policeman Dog and have that old Daddy Fox put in jail!"

And after that, maybe five hundred short seconds, the old gentleman rabbit, Mr. Lucky Lefthandfoot, drove up in his Sledmobile, and as soon as he honked the big sleighbell Billy Bunny unlocked the door and came out of the house.

"Get on your overcoat," said dear Uncle Lucky. "We'll take a spin." And while the little rabbit was getting ready, the old gentleman bunny tied his blue silk polka-dot handkerchief over his old wedding stovepipe hat and under his chin so that Willie Wind couldn't blow it off, and after that he wound his gold watch and chain and put on his goggles and honked the sledmobile bell, and by that time the little rabbit was tucked in the front seat, so away they went.

Well, after they had gone for maybe a mile, who should they see but the Old Red Rooster. And what do you suppose he was doing. Why, he was carrying letters for Aunt Columbia. Yes, sree, he had on a gray uniform and a big bag full of letters, and when he saw Billy Bunny he set down the bag and looked it over, and by and by, after he had wiped his spectacles three or two times, he handed a letter to the little rabbit.

"It's from my dear friend, the Circus Elephant!" exclaimed the little rabbit, and he gave three hops to the left and two skips to the right and half a hop backwards.

"Read it to me," said Uncle Lucky. So Billy Bunny began:

"Dear Billy Bunny, I'm writing you now don't you think it funny that I am taking things so easy,

For soon I'll swing on high trapeze! Or go rolling on a barrel! While I sing a Xmas carol. Now this is all, so I will end—Write soon to your Elephant Friend."

And in the next story I'll tell you what Billy Bunny wrote.

"Y" BUSINESS MEN'S CLASSES ARE POPULAR

Interest in the business men's class at the Y. M. C. A. is increasing with every session. The closing of the going season has added to the enrollment of the gym class the names of many of Janesville's business men who seek to keep up their high physical condition by keeping fit physically.

The classes are lively affairs of testing and jollying and stretching and straining of muscles. They are usually opened with a game of volleyball. Each man falls into the game as he arrives on the floor and at the close of the first game the chess class work is begun and the men are put through a lively class drill of lunging and stretching, stooping and raising and various twists and turns which bring into play about all the muscles a man has concocted about his person.

After the drill is completed the men return to the volleyball game and finish the hour in the regular "chop-choop" style of hoops and yells, they hit and bobble the inflated ball back and forth across the net.

The men meet three times a week from five to six o'clock on Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

SHORTAGE OF COAL WILL BE RELIEVED IN JANESVILLE SOON

JANESVILLE RESIDENTS WILL NOT HAVE TO SHIVER ANY LONGER AS PLINY OF COAL IS IN SIGHT.

26 CARS ON THE WAY

Henry Hanson, Local Fuel Administrator, informed this morning that large shipment is enroute.

Janesville residents who have been shivering and hunting for steam heated apartments need worry no more for it was this morning that Henry Hanson, local fuel administrator that 26 cars of small anthracite coal was enroute to Janesville. Twenty six cars of coal means nearly 400 tons and the citizens will be able to get their coal supply in a few days. After waiting several weeks for the coal situation to become better the Chamber of Commerce, aware of the welfare of the citizens appointed a coal committee, naming Attorney E. D. McGowan as chairman.

An investigation was immediately started and it was found that due to an unknown reason Janesville was not getting her coal as directed. The matter was taken up with the local administrator, then with the county director and after that with Mr. Fitzgerald, the State Fuel Administrator. Mr. Fitzgerald assured the Chamber of Commerce that he would do everything in his power to get the coal to Janesville. Also great credit should be given Henry Hanson the local administrator for the work he accomplished in getting the coal to Janesville. Mr. Hanson worked day and night for over a week and was in communication with Madison every day until he was informed this morning that the coal was enroute to Janesville. Mr. Hanson will have charge of the allotting of the coal to the dealers in this city.

Twenty six cars of small anthracite coal coming to Janesville is good news. First it means that it is the largest shipment of coal received in this city since the entry of the United States into the war. For the past two months Janesville citizens have been worrying along on about one fourth their usual amount of coal. There has been a great deal of uneasiness due to the shortage of the fuel, and the announcement made this morning should be hailed with joy by the citizens of Janesville. In discussing the shipment this morning E. D. McGowan, chairman of the coal committee of the Chamber of Commerce said, "I early realized that Janesville was not getting the coal that was ordered here. There was a serious shortage and many people were complaining of the lack of fuel. Assisted by Mr. Hanson, the local administrator I communicated with the State Fuel Administrator and insisted that we be relieved of our shortage immediately. Mr. Fitzgerald stated that he would do everything possible and this morning we were informed that 26 cars were enroute to Janesville and should arrive here within a short time."

Mrs. John W. Peters Donor of Beautiful Silk Flag to Boy Scouts of City—Interesting Program Held.

The Boy Scouts of Janesville were recipients last evening at the Y. M. C. A. of a beautiful silk banner mounted upon a pole with a belt with which to carry it on occasion. The gift was from Mrs. John W. Peters, who has been a member of the Boy Scout movement, and because of her sympathy for the boys and great interest in their cause not only gave the banner, but also presented to them ten dollars in cash to be a part of a fund to be created for the employment of a Boy Scout executive which, it is hoped, in time, may be realized.

M. O. Mout, in presenting the banner to the boys on behalf of Mrs. Peters, spoke very feelingly of the responsibility which devolves upon the boys of the nation and of the wonderful period we are all permitted to live. The Boy Scouts are divided into six troops in the city and last evening's gathering was in part to witness "stunts" produced by the various troops, and the offerings were all interesting, especially so in the first troop, Troop 4, in which the devil is portrayed as assigning the future work of the German war lords. The following young men took the various parts: Kaiser, Henry Tall; crown prince, Lawrence Bear; devil, Arleight Pleson; page, Donald Blake; Von Hindenburg, Leo Grifffey; Von Tirpitz, Roy Butts; Zeppelin, Vol. T. H. Will; Stead, Lawrence; Bismarck, Nero; George Connor; Pilot, Howard Peterson; Judas, Leslie Gitchell.

Troop 5 gave a splendid musical number, with Monte Evans, as soloist, Leslie Mohrs, drums, while Miss Genevieve Jensen assisted these players on the piano. Earl Jensen and Roy Butts, of Troop 4, sang a song for a foreign midget. Lloyd Sadler of Troop 6 rendered a pleasing piano number, and Troop 2 interested the Scouts considerably, as they did not follow the usual program, but instead, the Scoutmaster of Troop 1, led the singing of America and the Star Spangled Banner, while Mr. Bergman of the School for the Blind presided at the piano.

From the meeting of last evening it is hoped will grow the nucleus of an orchestra and possibly, later, a band. The Y. M. C. A. with Scout Commissioners, Bearmore this evening at 7:00 o'clock.

Some discussion took place as to the future work of the Scouts in Janesville and there is a possibility of a co-educational organization being started for the employment of a scout executive whose business it will be to look after the interests of the Boy Scouts for the entire county.

HEARD FROM OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

Two very interesting letters describing the peace celebration held by the men in service here and abroad have been received in this city.

A letter from Francis Sinclair tells in a very vivid manner the way in which the boys with the American forces in France celebrated the signing of the armistice. A letter from Lt. Leo Chase from Taylor Field describes the manner in which the officers in the United States celebrated the end of the world war. The letters follow:

"The following letter was received by Mrs. George Chase, 220 North Pearl street from her son, Lt. Leo Chase, flight commander at Taylor Field, who is ten instructors and fifty cadets, when machines and their mechanics."

Montgomery, Ala.
Taylor Field joined in one grander reville both the air and the ground. The air was full of howls, awakenings, the country side. Then the drum corps got busy and paraded from one end to the other.

Never before had its efforts so appreciated and never have they put so much pep into their marches. Every man on the field was rejoicing. Major Hoffman immediately called off all flying and declared a holiday for Taylor Field. The pilots of Taylor Field also took part in the celebration and gave the people of Montgomery such a treat as they have never seen before and will probably never see again. Major Hoffman personally supervised the departure of sixty airplanes which left the field about 9 o'clock to fly to the city. Each plane was loaded with flowers which were thrown from the ships when they were over the business districts of Montgomery.

The flowers were brought out to the field in trucks and distributed to every pilot. The planes took off in three lines of twenty ships each and headed for the capital. Hundreds of people obtained flowers that rained from the sky and are keeping them as a souvenir of the day peace was declared.

Captain Sheridan was also given a treat of several stunts by a number of ships that dropped out of the lines after passing over the city.

Seven of the ships passed in a "V" formation over the town several times and then executed "right dress." When the wings of the seven ships were on a line all of them simultaneously began looping the loop. After the stunting was over, the "V" formation was again taken up and the ships flew back to the field in this fashion. Have been picked to go on another cross-country trip to Memphis, Tenn. It will be a long trip, 400 or 500 miles and will take three or four days to go and come. There will be three ships on this trip and we travel on government orders.

Bourges, France, Nov. 13, 1918. At last the carriage is over. And you can rest assured that there is no one in the world more satisfied than the man in uniform. We had a wonderful time here in Bourges last Monday night, the evening of the day the armistice was signed, and I am going to give you a description of the celebration, by writing just as I would have been reporting it for an American

"Finis la guerre! Finis la guerre!"
"Vive l'Amerique!"
Urged on by the sudden feeling of more than fifty months of the trials of war; overjoyed by the victorious close of the most terrible conflict of the ages, a war that only four months ago was going so much against them that the Lloyd George declared, "Our backs are to the wall," 110,000 inhabitants of Bourges, augmented by nearly 2,000 American soldiers and officers, swarmed the streets last night in a wonderful celebration of the signing of the armistice by the German plenipotentiaries and of rejoicing at the downfall of militarism.

Mardi Gras? New Year's Eve? Celebrations in the states? Election night? Commemorations? Independence day? Commemorations? Haloween doings?—not a one of them ever compared in the spirit of great jubilation that prevailed in this little old French town from the early afternoon until the small hours of the morning. Faces that have been marked vividly by the stern lines of sacrifice and suffering changed in a few hours to the wrinkles of the smiles of joy. honor—linked arm in arm with soldiers of the greatest republic of the world, America, led parades of men, women and children through the crooked old streets of the city. Windows that have been darkened by the necessities of war, that have had their blinds drawn in the solemnity and sorrow of mortal conflict, were thrown open to the fresh air of a beautifully moonlight night, while displays of electric lights illuminated streets that blinked in the brightness of the glare.

Two a gala day. The munitions and artillery plants were shut down upon the declaration of a forty-eight hour holiday, and the workers, proudly carrying the Great-Cross, the Stars and Stripes, the Union Jack and even the Red Sun of Japan, on high, surged through the avenues singing the Marseillaise at the top of their voices, and cheering exultantly for the Allies. Their cries of gladness echoed and reechoed as they struck the stone walls of the buildings along the lane-like streets. Horns, tooters, whistles blew; drums rolled; the shrill whistles of French locomotives shrieked; guns boomed, and the silvery bells of the flag-bedecked cathedral tolled out the marvelous news.

Hailed by the celebrators, who lined the curbs or hung from gayly lighted balconies and windows, Yankee soldiers took a leading part in the demonstrations. They formed parades of from 200 to 1,000 soldiers and civilians, led by bearers of the Allied standards, and marched, and skipped, singing as they went, from square to square, showered with flowers and thanked for their part in bringing the war to so successful a termination.

There was one bunch especially that entered into the occasion with unbounded enthusiasm. Starting with but five or ten, this little group swelled into hundreds almost instantly. When it reached the first square, a short and noisy of two huskies from where he led, with gusto, the mob—for such it was—in singing the national anthems of America and France and sending the clouds of three cheers to the star-lit skies.

Winding through the town, the paraders finally entered a prominent cafe, where, mounted upon the tables and chairs, they once more broke into gleeful shouts of triumph while the startled French clapped for joy.

Long before the time for the opening of the restaurants, however, a clamoring to be admitted. And once they got within, the scenes were those of great joy. High officers toasted with buck privates the cohesion of the truce. Beautiful mademoiselles and well-groomed men banqueted, unchecked any longer by the need for economy such as war had demanded, to their stomachs' content upon his bread and butter. The food they ate, eat, drink and be merry was the note of the night.

Great was the reception accorded a knot of about twenty soldiers that marched through the cafe, wending their way in and out among the tables, led by one of our own heroes, who wore a Croix de Guerre upon his breast and carried an American flag on high.

Monday night passed all too soon. All day Tuesday the French paraded through the streets. Late in the afternoon a great crowd of them managed in some way to pass the guard at the gates to the American camp and enter within the walls. They came to demonstrate, their leaders said, how deeply they appreciated what America has done for France. Their leaders mounted the platform used by the "Y" for boxing matches and from there led their countrymen in the "Marseillaise" and rousing cheers until they were informed politely that, though their honoring us was appreciated, they were really doing us harm. The city Tuesday night was again the scene of remarkable gaiety that seemed even to outmatch that of the previous evening.

And here it is Wednesday night. Three days have passed since the armistice was signed. And the celebration continues with apparently as much vigor and enthusiasm as ever. From all appearance it will be at least a week before the populace quiets down.

All over France similar scenes are being reported. An American lieutenant, and a private who was with him on an inspection tour report that in every town they passed they were stopped by inhabitants who insisted upon showering us with freshly cut flowers and opening bottles of champagne with them. Even along the country roads, these soldiers state, when the peasants discovered that they were Americans, they were fêted and wined.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My fiancé is in France and may be back any time now. Before he left he gave me a ring and made me promise that I would wait for him. One day after I had washed dishes and taken the water away I noticed that the stone on my ring was gone. I looked everywhere for it and could not find it. I worked but he did not make much money and it hardly reaches when I give half of it to my mother and buy my clothes and lunches with the rest. I expect to buy a new stone and have it put in the ring, but now that the war is over I will not have time to save enough money. Do you know any place where I could buy a diamond and only pay $50.00 on it?

Do not try to replace the stone. When the boy returns, tell him of your misfortune. He cannot blame you since it was not your fault that you lost it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am keeping company with a certain boy and I can never be sure that he is going to keep a promise. He has been very good and the evening he is to come to my house he will not be able to do so. He always has some good excuse. At first I believed him, but now I think he wants to do something else and puts me off. I care a great deal for this boy and do not want to give him up. What do you think I ought to do in such a case?

The next time the boy asks for an engagement tell him that he makes and breaks his engagements so often that you do not find them satisfactory. Say that you will expect no excuses in the future and unless he is sure he can keep his engagement you do not want him to make it. If he breaks his word again, drop him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: When I went to school I used to be very clumsy with a certain girl. She continued to do so every year since. After finishing school I went to work and she stayed at home with her mother. She and I were very close friends and sweethearts all the time now, while I am interested in my work. We do not see very much of each other. Do you think it would be all right for me to tell her that this year I would rather not exchange Christmas presents?

Yes, it will be all right to tell her that you would rather not exchange gifts this year. You might send her a Christmas greeting instead.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Last night I went auto riding with a fellow who has been to see me three times. He got out of town he put his arm around me. I told him he shouldn't and he said that it was all right and anyone who said it wasn't was old-fashioned and a brute. Why isn't it all right?

A girl who permits love-making with any man and on short acquaintance soon becomes common and helpless. Beware! Beware! from the very sight of her what her character is. If you want to be respected and loved by the best class of young men, you will not permit such actions.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: About seven months ago I met a boy three years my senior. He is now in the army and has written me several nice letters describing his trips and asking me to write. I have written him a number of letters.

Do you think it would be all right for me to send him a little booklet or card for Christmas?

Yes, it would be all right to send him a booklet or card for Christmas. If you do not find them satisfactory, say that you will expect no excuses in the future and unless he is sure he can keep his engagement you do not want him to make it. If he breaks his word again, drop him.

Ask your employer if the man is married. If he doesn't know he will advise you where to get the information.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

(Miss Reilly will answer in this column all questions on etiquette)

It is a sign of ill-breeding to bring into a conversation personal allusions. To caricature the small peculiarities of anyone, to make anyone conspicuous, is unpardonable.

Mrs. L. H. Always speak of your husband as Mr. (with surname), except to very intimate friends.

Margot: A good listener is more to be desired than a fine conversationalist. In order to be a good listener you must appear to be interested, answer appropriately, briefly and to the point and give your companion the impression that you are in sympathy with and highly-entertained by what he is saying.

Into twelve muffin pans. Put a pecan nut on top of each, and bake fifteen minutes in a slow oven.

Popovers—Grease the muffin pans, and beat them in the oven to heat. Beat quickly two eggs, add a cupful of milk, and pour this slowly, stirring all the while, into one cupful of flour, which has been sifted into the twelve hot muffin pans, and bake in a moderate oven a half hour or until light in weight.

Orange Cake—One-quarter cup butter, one cup sugar, two eggs well beaten, one-half cup milk, one and one-half cups flour, one-half cup baking powder. Cream the butter, add gradually the sugar, then the eggs, milk and the flour and baking powder, and spread orange filling between the layers. Spread orange filling between the layers, and orange frosting on top.

Marshmallow Drop Cakes—Separate three eggs. Beat two tablespoonsful of butter to a cream, add the yolks of the eggs and gradually the sugar. When light, add two and a half cupfuls of flour, sifted with two teaspoonsful of baking powder, alternately with one cupful of lukewarm water. Beat vigorously. Stir in carefully the well-beaten whites of the eggs and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Fill in twelve muffin pans, and bake in a slow oven twenty minutes. When cold, frost the top with melted marshmallows, dust thickly with powdered sugar, and dry near the oven door.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

Women are certainly making history today. We have had everything from the first woman conductor to the first representative and now news comes from overseas of the first woman ambassador.

Mrs. Rosika Schwimmer is the name which will go down in history as that of the first woman named to head an embassy. Mrs. Schwimmer is the president of the Hungarian Woman's Suffrage and it will be remembered that she was one of the prominent figures of the Ford peace mission. In fact she is credited with having been the originator of the peace ship idea.

Alma Scher is a Hungarian pacifist and writer who now lives in Switzerland. The Hungarian government has appointed her as an ambassador for the post in Switzerland and she will take up her duties shortly.

The situation in Hungary is such. Mrs. Schwimmer states that the government would be willing to abide by any decision of a peace conference, "no matter how unfavorable," because the government is helpless.

"AUNT MARY" GONE TO FRANCE
Miss Mary McDowell, known in Chicago as "Aunt Mary," on "The Angel of the Stockyards," has gone to France to investigate the work of the Y. W. C. A. in several parts of France. She will return to this country to lecture in the interest of the foreign-born woman with whom she has been working since the war began.

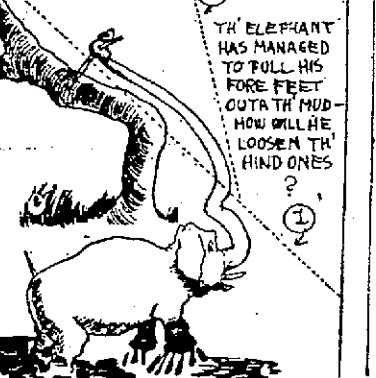

Women workers in Chicago knew Miss McDowell first in 1914, when she organized the girls of the packing houses there during the strike of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters. She was then director of the University of Chicago settlement in the stockyards. Since spring Miss McDowell has been working on a committee for the assistance and information of foreign-born women. This committee has established information bureaus for the women, with interpreters in all languages to explain about the war, the public opinion and other quite as perplexing questions.

ACTRESSES WORK FOR WAR ORPHANS
The Stage Women's War Relief launched a drive for the war orphans on Dec. 1. It was endorsed by President Wilson in a letter in which he Heap the apples in the center, sprinkle over them a few raisins and gather up the cloth so the apples are covered with rice. Tilt the dumpling rather tight and plunge into a saucepan of fast boiling water. Boil quickly for one hour and then out and serve with syrup or maple sugar and hot milk.

THE MARCH OF THE WOMEN'S CLUB
When you remember the day when women's clubs were made fun of, when discussions of Browning and the Ethical Aspect of This or That were supposed to be their chief activities, when the women of serious home to read a paper at the club was one of the best little space fillers for newspapers or magazines?

I can very easily admit that isn't a confession of advanced age, either. It's merely an admission that I was alive and taking notice fifteen or twenty years ago.

Just a Few Of Its Activities
Now the other day I picked up the monthly bulletin of a typical women's club of today, and read it through. And here is a list of a few of their activities for the past and current months:

Lectures on "Your City Government" (by the mayor).
On Child Welfare (by a national expert).

On work for the Blind Soldiers (by an expert).

The maintenance of headquarters on common in the center of the city, in which all sorts of carefully collated food-acts are given out by mail, telephone, and in person.

Maintenance of similar headquarters for clothing facts. (This included the employment, twice a week of a "specialist in remodeling gowns.")

Recognition by the State
Maintenance of similar headquarters for fuel facts. The Fuel Administrator of the State though sufficiently well of this to have a model heating-plant installed in it for demonstration.

Regular supply of a large quota of hospital garments and surgical dressings.

Wonderful work in answering all sorts of emergency calls due to influenza. Here is a single typical example: A call comes at five o'clock for help on masks for doctors and nurses attending influenza patients. At nine o'clock the full quota asked, 250 masks, is delivered.

Work begun under the direction of the Council for National Defense, for making garments for refugees out of cast-off clothing.

Even Men Copy This
The final harvesting of the crop from a model garden in a small plot of public land in the center of the city. The half-acre devoted to potatoes and beans produced 52 bushels of the former and 40 of the latter. Methods of preparing the ground for another year are now being demonstrated. Sketches and photographs of these gardens have been made for use of many other communities. (And not by women only, either.)

The stage women appeal to amateur players through "When a Feller Needs a Friend," a play written and given without royalties by Harriet Ford and Harvey O'Higgins. The committee of the public opinion will co-operate with the Stage Women's War Relief to make the play the official production of the schools, colleges, churches, clubs and societies in every corner of the country.

HER COMMANDING PRESENCE.
(By author of that thrillingly mysterious tale, "Oh, To Be Nothing or Something"; and "I'll Be Home Early for I Haven't a Cent"; "Three Squares"; "Where Did You Go?"; "By Hook or Crook or Mostly Crook"; "Father Needs a Dinner While Mother Kneads the Dough"; "The Kid's Fight or All Over the Top"; "The Great Mystery of His Eyes Were Black but Their Color was Blue or How Was It?"; "The Viking's Vision"; "A Candle in the Dark or All Lit Up"; "Which?"; "Twice in the Same Place or The Flea's Revenge"; and six others being thought of.)

The spectators at the marvelously wonderful scene were petrified as they stood on the stone floor of the marble hall. Surprise—wonder—admiration followed each other playfully across each face. In some instances, the expression followed the other so quickly that the first was entirely obliterated. All the upturned faces looked the same as they looked at her.

Walking majestically down the steps, one step after the other, the woman looked about her smilingly for the first time. What she read on the guests' faces that she was beautiful. Nobody had ever told her so. Even her mirror never told her. And still she came down. Her beauty was magnificent to behold. Not an eye left her face. Both were there the entire evening. Every soul present was astonished that one so beautiful could live. Only cigarette boxes had such faces and figures as hers.

And marvel of marvels! She ate, too—just like any ordinary human being.

A brilliant blue-black was her hair—velvet and satin were her cheeks—red her coral lips; and her eyes! Ye Venuses! Her eyes were green as grass!

Of lustrous golden satin was her gown, cut X-shape in the back and trimmed with sprays of fringed for-gainments and loop-the-loops of crimson tape, while a jazz-band of kitchen fur was—

(Right at this juncture the author, hearing the peace noises and bombardments in the street below, rushed out of his office to celebrate and has not been seen since.—Ed. Morning Glory.)

Fifty-five Killed.
MARINETTE—Fifty-five Marinette county men made the supreme sacrifice during the late war. Two more deaths were added to the latter list which reports were received here of the death of Privates Charles Schwartz of Marinette and Clarence Peterson of Peshtigo, both of whom met death on the battle field.

THE STRUGGLE

TWO VISIONS.
When the men had gone Edith Ferrol and Fay Summers sat looking at each other. The eyes of the older woman said, "Thank God for my brother's success!" Those of the girl expressed plainly the thought "A-ha! Things are coming my way after all!"

Edith's mind was not attuned to financial discussion in big terms. The fruit of her yearnings for many years of married life had been the possession of a regular allowance—twenty dollars; ten even; anything, so long as it was regular, and she didn't have to ask for it and it was hers to do with as she willed. The saving of a dime on her weekly meat bill meant successful finance. The loss of a dollar when a basket of apples turned out badly was a disaster. The very unfamiliarity of the sums discussed by Ned and the promoter, Larnsey, bred a little distrust in Edith's mind.

But her belief in her brother was so great that nothing with his success as a basis seemed really improbable. Larnsey, she figured, was used to big money, and he was in the line of the nut handle currency—without regarding it as cash at all, merely as so much metal and paper! Fay Summers regarded the whole proceeding at the natural outcome of any effort made in her behalf. Ned saw he would have to be successful to win her, and he was waking up and looking at the situation. The man she married had to have money. She was an expensive girl, and was proud of it. If that man really understood the value of money, he would have to have it. "You can't buy the house on the hill—that lovely two-story one with the pergola and the garage and the place for the swimming pool, and have a really decent car! I do hope Ned will be able to draw some of his fifty thousand right away. He will, won't he, Mrs. Ferrol?"

Fay hesitated, difficulty calling Ned's sister anything but "Mrs. Ferrol." It was her one diffidence. Somehow Edith's manner held the girl at a distance. This manner was colder than usual as she listened to Fay's characteristic question, her eyes significantly upon her bare engagement finger.

"I don't know, Fay," replied Edith quietly. "But I think that house is too expensive and too large for you. It would cost a great deal to keep up. You couldn't stand it." "Oh, you are so old-fashioned!" exclaimed Fay with a patronizing lift. "Nobody pretends to make excuses nowadays, not to speak of giving anything away. You might as well be dead as have a tin-lizzie in a portable garage. And I'd be ashamed to have the neighbors see cotton underwear hanging on my clothes line. Ned gets $50,000 out of his invention, I'm going to have that house and give a dinner party that little old Arcadia will be ashamed to host. For my part, I'll spend a thousand on guest-servants alone, and I'll have opera singers and Russian dancers and military music and wine enough to make the people forget whether there was anything to eat or not! Oh—you've got the wrong idea entirely. Nobody economizes in these days. If men have to earn a lot of money, it's their business to spend it smart and alert."

"Or kills them," murmured Edith, her heart full of resentment that this selfish, shallow-hearted girl should so easily have her desires fulfilled, while she—and others even more deserving, more devoted, wives—should be condemned to lifelong sacrifice.

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

A TENDENCY TO WARD TUBERCULOSIS
Every little while a reader writes that his doctor has examined his chest and told him that he must take care of himself, for he has a tendency to tuberculosis in one lung, and the reader wants to know what he had better do about it.

I have studied this thing hard and I am bound to confess that I don't know. It is difficult to make a diagnosis of actual incipient tuberculosis of the lung—tuberculosis in the first stage. When a doctor's diagnosis is a tendency to the disease I must turn the patient over to a better doctor. As I have encountered tuberculosis, after the patient had the disease or as I did not have it, I was unable to determine whether he had it or not.

There are plenty of occasions when I have been unable to determine whether the patient had the disease or not in such a predicament, what is a doctor to do? There is but one thing for him to do. He may tell the patient frankly that he is in doubt and unable to form an opinion with out further observation and examination of the patient. If the patient is unable to appreciate what that means it would be just as well for all concerned that the patient seek the opinion of some other doctor.

No man is so expert in diagnosis that he cannot err. The diagnosis of incipient pulmonary tuberculosis is a matter of professional opinion and cannot be settled absolutely by any particular test.

Still there is no excuse for dismissing a patient with a quibble in lieu of a diagnosis or frank statement of "I don't know." It is a quibble. To say "I don't know" is a quibble. To say "I will run into consumption if you don't watch out" is a quibble. To say "a slight catarrhal condition in the right apex" is a quibble.

Dandruff Surely Destroys The Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.
